WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY.
Violet Ingleby, a pretty but poorly dressed English girl, is walking along a London street in the rain when her shabby little hat is blown down and scattered upon by a well-dressed and successful young man. The man, who is a ruined headliner and smilingly offers to pay for it, but is haughtily told by the young woman that she is no beggar. With this rebuff he goes on his way and Violet proceeds on hers, to run into a motor accident in which a flower woman with a little baby in her arms is run over by the car. The mother is killed, the little baby, her baby, escapes unhurt and is caught up by Violet. She takes her to her cheap lodging house. Now go on with the story.

Violet, feigning to live in the front bed-sitting-room on the second floor. When she was in "work," as Mrs. Higgs put it, she paid her rent regularly, but lately she had had a run of bad luck, following an illness, and was four weeks behind.

Life had gone hardly with her. Naturally delicate, she found it difficult to keep her health on that small income she could earn, which often and often admitted only of one meal a day.

She was, as she herself put it, Jack of all trades. She colored Christmas cards for a firm at a slave rate; she taught music to one or two aspiring school girls in the neighborhood; she had even sold programs in a theatre and tried her luck in the show rooms at Galtwick's, the big drapers.

But the continued standing had been too much for her, and that together with a chill, had resulted in the illness that was responsible for the arrears in the rent book.

"Why don't you go 'ome to yer people?" Mrs. Higgs demanded one day, as she stood at the foot of the girl's bed and stared down at her with a frown above her eyes.

"Ain't yer got no mother or someone who'll be glad to see yer?" In her rough way Mrs. Higgs meant to be kind. It was a rough way and only those who knew her most intimately could penetrate her grim exterior and find the kindly heart that beat beneath her tight, black bodice.

The girl turned her head wearily on the pillow without answering, but a faint flush had tinged her pale cheeks; a mist of tears for a moment clouded her blue eyes.

"There's nobody who would be glad to see me," she said presently in a hard voice.

Mrs. Higgs had thereupon drawn her own conclusions. It was not the first time she had had lodgers of the same type—young girls who spoke with the gentle breeding of a lady, and who were yet as friendless and alone as if they had "just grown" like Topsy, of old.

She stood in the dingy passage now and followed the girl's slim figure up the dark staircase with a sort of grim smile on her face.

"It weren't in the agreement for you to keep a child 'ere," she called after her resentfully. "And if that's what yer mean to do, up goes the rent—see?"

The girl made no reply. She owed a month's rent already, so perhaps argument seemed a little superfluous in the face of such a fact. She went on her way up the two flights of uncarpeted stairs with the sleeping boy held tightly in her right arms.

The front bed-sitting-room was in darkness. She groped her way to the narrow bedstead there and laid the child gently down.

He stirred a little, sleepily, and murmured:
"Mum—Mum!" a catch like a sob in his voice.

A sudden pain contracted the girl's heart, there were tears in her eyes as she fumbled for matches, and in a cheap lamp on the small, round table in the center of the room.

With it in her hand she went back to the bedside and looked down at the child. He lay on his left side, one flushed cheek resting on a chubby hand, his brown curls spread over the pillow, one tiny foot kicked free of its worn shoe, hanging wearily over the edge of the bed.

Prayer Each Day

Then will I hear from Heaven, and receive their sin.—11 Chr. 7:14.
Almighty God, our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee for the way of approach to Thyself through the rent veil of the flesh of Jesus Christ, our Lord; for the efficacy of His most precious blood, which cleanseth from all sin; for the promise of help through the Holy Spirit, when we know not what we should pray for; for the assurance that Thou hearest us, and dost delight to answer our prayers when they are in accord with Thy Holy Will. We bless Thee for Thine unspokeable Gift, for the matchless expression of Thy love in the sacrifice of Christ, and for the grace so freely bestowed upon the sinful sons of men. Accept the homage of our hearts, the surrender of our powers, and help us in all circumstances to be true to Thee. Deliver us in the time of temptation. Keep our feet so that our steps may not slide, and help us not to sin against Thee. Enable us to realize that sin is our enemy, that it hides Thee from us, and will, if indulged in, ruin us in time and eternity. Fill us with the spirit of Jesus, that all our speech and conduct may reveal His life in us, and that we may constantly glorify Thee, our adorable God. "Graciously accept us and our petitions in the name of Jesus our Lord. Amen."

Richardson County Crop

of Newly Weds Is Small
Falls City, Neb., June 17.—(Special.)—Richardson county has prospect of a bumper crop agriculturally and horticulturally this year, but harvesting has been pretty poor for Daniel Cupid—the poorest in years, in fact.
Thus far this year the little love god has accounted for but 42 pairs of victims, three of the couples falling prey to his marksmanship in the last 24 hours. This is a decrease of 10 for the corresponding period of 1921.
The expected June rush has not yet materialized, but County Judge Virgil Falloon has not given up hope and continues daily to spray his office with the intense of roses to give the place an erotic atmosphere and stimulate business.

Girl Arrested Here With Man to Return Home

Catherine Lutje, 20, decided to go back home with her father yesterday.

She was arrested Tuesday evening at 8:30, at 3099 South Twentieth street with John Hidy alias John Wilson, who, police declare, admitted he is married.

There were no pictures on the walls, but a portrait of a man in a gilt frame stood on the narrow mantelshelf—a young looking man with dark eyes and a military appearance.

Many and many a time Mrs. Higgs quizzed that portrait with her one eye, often and often she had burned to ask who he might be, but something had kept her from so doing. She never felt quite at ease with Violet Ingleby. She realized that the wide gulf of gentility separated them impassably.

A small fire struggled for existence in the tiny grate. The girl coaxed it into a blaze and set a kettle on to boil. Then she made some tea and cut a plate of thin bread and butter.

She moved about softly so as not to wake the sleeping child, but presently he roused, sat up with a start, and began to cry.

She was beside him in an instant. She sat down on the bed and took him in her arms, speaking soothingly to him, kissing his hair, as if he had been her own child.
