Whedon—It is getting to be quite the thing these days to sit down and dash off an answer to "Coin's Financial School." C. O. Whedon is understood to be at work on a book designed as a reply to "Coin." Mr. Whedon knows several things about the money question, and his book will be read.

Tuttle—The friends of Miss Daisy Tuttle will be pleased to learn that she is expected home about May 15. Miss Tuttle has spent about four years in Boston and New York cultivating her voice. She has had the benefit of the best instruction and her singing has been warmly praised by her various teachers.

Reese—Many of the boys in the University of Michigan glee club looked forward to their visit to Lincoln with special pleasure on account of the prospect of meeting Harry Reese, who was a member of the glee club for two years. Mr. Reese, according to Mr. Thompson, a leading member of the present organization, was "the hottest member of the club."

Funke—Next week Mr. and Mrs. Oscar F. Funke will remove to Omaha. Mr. Funke since his entry into the insurance business last year has made a phenomenal record. It is said that he has written more insurance in the last six months than any other agent in Lincoln. In recognition of his services his company, the Connecticut Mutual of Hartford, has given him a general agency with headquarters in Omaha. Mr. Baughman, with whom Mr. Funke has been associated, will remain in Lincoln.

Lennon—The St. Paul Pioneer Press has this to say of Miss Mathilde Lennon, the contralto singer, who recently left Lincoln. "Miss Mathilde Lennon is a recent acquisition to St. Paul musical circles and has taken apartments at Barteau. Miss Lennon is a native of Boston and for a considerable period travelled with Julia Rive King, but came to St. Paul from Wichita, Kan. Miss Lennon sang Thursday morning at Ford's hall before a number of St. Paul musicians, and made a very favorable impression. She possesses a full, rich contralto voice, of good range and pleasing quality. She has an excellent presence and sings with great ease and considerable dramatic style. Thursday morning she was heard in a number of German folk songs as well as selections from Italian opera, all of which were interpreted in a manner displaying excellent technique."

Pershing—Lieutenant J. J. Pershing's connection with the University of Nebraska will come to an end at the close of the present term. His original detail was for two years, and at the expiration of this time at the urgent request of Chancellor Canfield, and others, he was given another year. He will soon have served three years and under the rules a change is imperative. Unless he is assigned to some special detached duty he will join his regiment, the Tenth Cavalry, now stationed in Montana, in September. The position of military instructor at the university is considered a desirable post, and there will doubtless be a number of applicants for Lieutenant Pershing's place. Lieutenant T. W. Griffith, who was Pershing's predecessor and who is now in Texas, is spoken of in connection with this appointment. The departure of Lieutenant Pershing will be attended with much genuine regret. He has rendered unvaryingly faithful service and has made the battalion, or the military department, an important factor at the university. He enjoys the respect and cordial friendship of the students and faculty, and all will be sorry to see him go. Pershing is sans some of the frills that often dangle from the modern military officer, and he is all the more efficient and manly. He has given his whole time to his duties since his residence in Lincoln, giving instruction in the regular course at the university in addition to his regular duties.
