Lillian Lillian is coming to Lincoln again. Nobody who was in this city the week of the opening of the Lansing theatre has forgotten Lillian Lewis. There were plenty of people who did not like this actress, but it is a fact that since she played here she has filled several engagements in New York with much apparent success. Her plays are of the modern sensational type that are much the vogue just now. Ever since Miss Lewis gave the memorable opening performances at the Lansing she has been desirous of coming back, and now arrangements have been made for her return to this house Saturday, May 11, when she will present her latest and most ambitious production, "Cleopatra."

Edouard Remenyi, the Hungarian violinist, who will be heard at the Funke Wednesday, May 15, has been in Lincoln many times, and has many friends here. As far back as fifteen years ago Remenyi took in Lincoln on his concert tours and of late years he has made annual appearances here. Remenyi's music appeals strongly to the popular taste. He is supported this year by a competent pianist and vocalist.

Emily Bancker will come to the Lansing May 14, when she will present "Our Flat." Miss Bancker is one of the cleverest actresses of the day, and in this play she has achieved signal success.

"Sidetracked" is the next attraction at the Lansing. This play, as its title indicates, is a sensational production. It is said to be a very stirring attraction, embracing fine scenery and taking specialties. It is due May 10.

The war concert to be given May 8 at the Funke promises to be a particularly interesting event. The entertainment will be similar to that recently given in Chicago, and will be for the benefit of the Woman's Christian association.

Reserved seats will be sold for 50 cents. The stage will be set in approved military style, with tents, guns, etc., and there will be military drills. These arrangements will be under the charge of Lieutenant Pershing and Captain Campbell. Lieutenant Townley will look after the decorations. There will be a chorus of 100 voices, under the direction of Mrs. P. V. M. Raymond. The songs will include all of the popular American patriotic airs and war songs. Miss Clara Anderson and other soloists will be heard.

Col. Lew Ginger's engagement at the Funke has been cancelled.

Lincoln has not yet had an opportunity to witness a presentation of genuine living pictures such as are seen in New York. When Tisso comes to this city May 18, with his troupe of foreign performers, most of whom are Parisians such an opportunity will be presented. Tisso's exhibition includes, besides, an array of vaudeville features. The company comes to this country direct from the Folio Bergeres Paris and the Alhambra theatre, London, and in it are some of the cleverest specialists of the old world. This attraction is booked for May 18, at the Funke opera house.

RESIGNATION.

[Written for THE COURIER.]

When across the rose-strewn path that we had hoped to tread
Some rude unlooked for barrier lifts its wall,

From out our heavy grief we are wont to weave

For the whole wide world, a sable pall.

When on our brow the thorns of disappointment press

And circumstances drive us in a stony path,

We rail against the world and scoff at hope

And blame high heaven in our fretful wrath.

But though the disappointments come, and smarting thorns,

And all our hopes lie as a broken wreck,

Yet must we learn that in the sorrow of this world

One heart's sorrow is but a tiny fleck.

For there has been since first the human heart

Began to beat its own soft muffled knell,

Great sorrows that have reached to heaven itself,

And down to the very gates of hopeless hell.

But only one amidst the multitude has died

Because his sorrow broke his human heart,

And he it was who on the blood stained cross

Tore death's black veil of fearful gloom apart.

And so when sorrow lays a heavy hand upon your head

And circumstances lash you with a scourge of pain,

Know that your lot is but the common lot of man

A part of the world's great solemn alto strain.

WILLIAM REED DUNROY.

"What is this?" exclaimed the prima donna, as she crumpled the printed sheet, threw it upon the floor and stamped upon it.

"What is the matter, my dear?" asked her husband.

"A new brand of piano has been placed on the market without my knowledge, and I have not written a testimonial saying it is the finest instrument I have ever used. This is the first time such a thing has happened and it is an insult."
