SMALL TALK.

Joe Mason, popularly known as the handsomest newspaper man in the city is making strenuous efforts to trade a Nebraska farm for a house and lot in Lincoln. And his friends draw their own conclusions.

L. Wessel, Jr., of Chicago, was in town this week. Mr. Wessel was one of the most enterprising citizens this town has had. He founded THE COURIER, ten years ago, and while in this city engaged in a number of publishing enterprises. And all of his publications, from a theatre program to THE COURIER, were artistic in make up and successful as money makers. Mr. Wessel organized the Nebraska State Band, and was otherwise interested in Lincoln enterprises. The same qualities that characterized him here are bringing him success in Chicago, where he is connected with Rubel Bros., publishers, in a responsible position. Some of his advertising specialties have attracted wide attention.

According to the Journal C. H. Morrill will be a candidate for governor next year. Congressman Meiklejohn is also mentioned as a candidate.

Patrons of Lincoln Park are invited by Manager Holt to spend tomorrow at that charming resort. There will be a balloon ascension at 4 p. m. and various other attractions.

"There is always room at the top. We regard the Chicago Times-Herald as a model newspaper. It merits the wonderful success it has achieved. It is edited with great ability and its news and literary features are of a high order. Drop in at Ed Young's news stand and leave a trial order. You will not be disappointed.

Hall Bro's, have a full line of Monarch gas and gasoline stoves on the floor for inspection of their friends and customers.

A Word From Mr. Aitken.

Will THE COURIER please allow me a word in self defense? I think you are hardly fair when you state that I was particularly scornful in my allusion to the love stories, in my communication of sometime since. I enjoy love stories in the works of the best writers such as Scott, Dickens, Thackeray, George Eliot, Mrs. Humphrey Ward, and others, but do not care for novels which are love story and nothing else.

This may be ascribed to my age, although David Swing said that a man's love for woman endured until he was along about eighty. Yet, it is partly true that as our years increase other questions of weight and importance interest us and claim our attention to the exclusion of love stories, questions which concern others besides ourselves. We want to know what our ablest minds think on these other questions, social political or religious. When we find them treated of in the novel with the lovestory sandwiched in with judgment, it gives additional interest and relish to the work, and brings light in that way to many minds, which is more convincing than solid argument. The authors of to day know of this demand and hence the supply, notwithstanding the clamour about the rules of art.

I was pleased to learn by your notice of Mr. Hearn's book on the Japanese, that their filial love is superior to their love for the opposite sex. If it is as Mr. Hearn says, a national trait of the Japs, their high place as a nation is assured. Filial love is a finer or less selfish feeling than love for the opposite sex. I doff my hat with reverence to the man or nation that honors the father and the mother. The lines in Goldsmith's "Deserted Village" with reference to the daughter, when the family were moving away, has a charm for me.

James Aitken.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.
