The reception given by Judge and Mrs. Samuel J. Tuttle Saturday evening last, to commemorate the silver anniversary of their marriage, and to have their friends meet their daughter, Miss Daisy, was one of the largest and most delightful parties of the late season. Their residence on east O street was attractively decorated with smilax and cut flowers in every room, and the lawn was gay with colored lanterns. Mrs. Tuttle wore the dress in which she was led to the altar as a bride twenty-five years before, and at the side of her husband and her charming daughters, Misses Daisy and Helen, received the guests as they appeared. Ices were served by the Misses Eddy, Melick, Erb, Graham, Gillum, Harwood and Daubach, and in the dining room which was rich with flowers like the rest Mrs. Holyoke, Mrs. Guthrie, Mrs. Landy C. Clark, Mrs. Melick and Mrs. McCandless served cake and coffee. Miss Tuttle, accompanied on the piano by Miss Gertrude Culbertson, entertained the company with fine vocal selections, among them, "Dost Thou Know That Sweet Hand" from "Mignon," and Dawley's "Because I Love You," and "Ecstasy" by Beach. Miss Tuttle has studied vocal music for several years under some of the best teachers of Boston and New York, and has a voice of unusual purity. Hagenow's orchestra at the head of the hallway discoursed instrumental music in the intervals. The tables were laden with numberless presents from friends of the host and hostess, many of them peculiarly apt and valuable, and some from old schoolmates whose good wishes time had not dimmed. Those present were: Gen. and Mrs. Amasa Cobb, Judge and Mrs.
