Mrs. William Tupper Wyman entertained Miss McKenna, Miss Dewey, Miss Stuart, the Misses Yates and Miss Pratt at luncheon on Thursday at her summer villa at Florence.

Mr. W. S. Gilbert's "Broken Hearts" was given by amateurs in the open air on Tuesday evening at the Omaha Lawn Tennis Club's grounds for the benefit of the Woman's Christian Association. A mad maiden in love with an old sun dial tells the story, a play closely suggestive of Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream" or Paneton's "Niobe". There could not have been a more perfect night for a performance and never in the history of amateur theatricals has had so perfect a stage picture been presented. The cast was made up of Mrs. J. H. Wheeler, Miss Alice Drake, Miss Chapman, Miss Blanche Allen, Mr. Herbert Cook and Mr. Frank Lea Short. While the acting of all was exceedingly good, probably the best ever done in Omaha by amateurs, it was Miss Drake who carried off the palm and received the most applause. She was an artistic surprise to her friends and her reading was delightful to listen to.

Miss Mary Jones and Miss Willa Cather returned from Beatrice, where they were the guests of the Misses Weston, this week. Miss Cather went at once to Red Cloud where she will remain until she begins actively upon her duties as a member of THE COURIER'S staff.

Chancellor McLean has gone east, and will not return until September, when, with Mrs. McLean, he will establish his home in this city. He looked at a number of residences here, and it is said he thought of taking the Mason Gregg house, one of the few houses in Lincoln possessing historic interest.

This residence, as will be remembered, was the home of Chancellor Fairfield. He resided in it up to the time of his departure from Lincoln. There are many Lincoln people who remember attending a reception there the evening of the day on which the regents dismissed the chancellor. It is reported that Professor Fairfield retired early in the evening, leaving the guests and even his daughter, Mrs. Field, who was also left in ignorance of the action of the regents. It was not generally known till the following morning.

NEW DRY GOODS STORE.
Quite a stir was made in dry goods circles the past week by the opening of the new Samuels dry goods store at the corner of Tenth and P streets, the old Boston Store stand. On Thursday these progressive gentlemen had a full band on the street all the morning and an orchestra on a raised platform during the afternoon and evening. The stock is new and worthy the attention of all. The force of clerks, ample for everybody to be waited on promptly and the new firm will doubtless meet with such success as it deserves.

ANOTHER GYCLE CONTEST.
