

POINTS IN POLITICS

Even Mr. Bryan's frantic appeal the evening before election could not stay the onward sweep of republicanism. The entire republican ticket in this county was elected; Low and Trompen received pluralities closely in accord with the estimate published in last week's Courier. In this county at least populism has had its day. Mr. Miller and Mr. Baker outlived the populist party, and now they are dead. They are not bad men, and may they rest in peace.

It is gratifying that Grandpa will continue to chew his gums in Fremont instead of making a travesty of justice on the supreme bench.

It is gratifying that Broatch and the whole republican ticket in Douglas county were elected.

It is gratifying that Judge Scott was elected, although it is to be hoped that the judge will be a little more temperate in the future.

It is gratifying that Rosewater was sat upon so hard, although many republicans do not sympathize with the kind of a campaign that was waged by the republicans in Douglas county. This making a fight on A. P. A. lines is not a good thing.

The republicans of Lancaster placed a clean ticket in the field this year. That is why the ticket was elected with such a large vote. If the party will continue to put up good men the people will continue to elect them. The only safe way is to make proper nominations.

Mr. Clark's methods were something of an innovation, but his campaign was eminently successful. He is deserving of much credit for his work in the campaign.

It begins to look as if Mr. Bryan's future were behind him.

The News was the only evening paper in the city that did not publish the flattering biographies of those eminent fusionists, Messrs. Miller and Baker. The News, by the way, put up a good, strong fight for the ticket, without indulging in any of that nauseous flatter that is popularly supposed to constitute the genuine test of newspaper support. The fact that Mr. Low is one of the stockholders in The News caused the political haters of that lively little publication to watch its course very closely in the hopes of catching it tripping in some not clearly defined way, which would have been promptly used in getting up a scrap between Low and Trompen, but they found it entirely useless work and worry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The tender pathos that shows through the troubles of the honest Yankee, "Josh Spruceby," which will be seen at the Lansing theatre Saturday, Nov. 9th is met at every situation by his wit and humor of peculiar circumstances. A daughter led away from the rural home to a big city, calls "Uncle Josh" to the metropolis, there to encounter swindlers of high and low grade. Awkward perplexities beset him on all sides and there his native wit has full play to make fun enough for any star attraction. Burt Hodgkins or better to know him, Yankee Hodgkins, makes the most of the honest ruralist who has these pathetic and ludicrous experiences in his life.

Frank Purcell plays a Dutch part to a nicety in makeup and language. The other parts are well taken and each one affords opportunity for noticeably excellent work. Of the special scenic effects the real sawmill takes first place. An innocent and abused young wife is thrown before the real whirling saw that is really sawing a real log, and before she is rescued is so near the rasping teeth of the saw that a woman's voice in the balcony yesterday afternoon created a little commotion by crying out in behalf of the unfortunate young woman. The music is a feature in the unexcelled band and orchestra associated with this company and their "rube" parade at noon Saturday is well worth looking for.

The current week's attractions at the Lansing theatre are limited to "The Dazzler," which comes Friday and Saturday, November 15 and 16, with Cosgrove and Grant's nimble farceurs in the old farce tuned up to the present period. The stability of "The Dazzler" is too well known to question its title of being one of the best farces ever brought out. It has made no less than two shining lights in the theatrical firmament, namely, Miss Kate Castleton and Mr. Joe Ott. The company this season is said to be strongly in individual talent than any this enterprising firm has offered to the public patronage and embraces quite a number of local favorites whose welcome back to Lincoln should be heralded with delight, and monetary returns should be their reward. Cosgrove and Grant's comedians are household words in the east. They are offered to the west, only when entour to the Pacific coast.

Mr. Walker Whitesides is one of the few young actors of the time who are worth study and who command attention. This is a university town and nothing worthy of the attention of thoughtful and scholarly people has been here this season. Mr. Whitesides is still a young man with the greater and brighter part of his career before him. He has never pandered to curry popular favor. He has stood by the legitimate, played it honestly, sincerely, conscientiously. He is measuring himself up with the greatest actors of the past, and he is doing it successfully. Elwyn A. Barron, the former critic on the Inter-Ocean, said of him: "Walker Whitesides is the only man of his generation who has the mark of tragic greatness written on his brow. Mark you, my masters, if he live he will rule us."

The Uncle Tom's Cabin company, which plays at the Funke tonight is not an ordinary scrub organization by any means. The people are all good ones and they played to crowded houses at the Boyd in Omaha last Saturday and Sunday evenings. They have had good business through the country and they deserve it. The company carries a banw of musical negroes that are a whole minstrel show in themselves. The company will give a performance at the Funke this evening and a matinee at reduced prices this afternoon.

When will the time come when "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will lose its charm to the rising generation? Judging by its present freshness, its alluring powers will be perennial. There is something in the skillful combination of the pathetic and the humorous that never fails to fascinate, and the story that it tells of the suffering of the poor slaves appeals directly to the finest sensibilities of the human soul. Such plays are better than sermons. They point a moral and adorn a tale. They teach us lessons in thoughtfulness and charity. They impress on our minds the precepts of the golden rule. measurable human import, and the play itself is one of those simple masterpieces that can never die. If it does no more than to keep alive the memory of the rise and fall of one of the greatest iniquities that history deals with, it was not written in vain.

The Cook Twin Sisters' colossal Uncle Tom's Cabin company will appear at the Funke opera house Friday and Saturday, November 8 and 9, and a grand family matinee Saturday at 2:30 p. m.
