

NOTES AND QUERIES

How ought "will" and "shall" to be used?

Some old grammars illustrated the incorrect use of these words by the cry of the drowning Frenchman who is supposed to have exclaimed: "I will die, no one shall help me." Will expresses intention or decision, shall expresses a future possibility which the speaker does not influence. However the use of these words by the best writers and speakers apparently follows different rules. For a presentation of the difficulties of the subject see an article on shall and will in the last "Bookman."

Is it correct to say Mrs. Professor Brown if the lady designated by this imposing title has no more claim to it than that she is the wife of Professor Brown. I. N.

No it is incorrect and nothing but an archaic cheat like "The Journal" still continues to use it. In the first report of the Presbyterian Jahr Markt, Mrs. Dr. Ladd was mentioned the next day Mrs. Dr. Latta was spoken of. I tried to find these names in the list of local practitioners but failed. When a woman marries a man she takes his name and draws the line there. She does not become a minister or a doctor or a veterinary surgeon.

Should a lady take a gentleman's arm or is it ever elegant for a gentleman to take a lady's arm? Lady.

It is never elegant for a gentleman to take a lady's arm. If the gentleman offers you his arm and you feel the need of a support because it is dark or slippery or you are about to dance, take it. Unless he is Bowery bred he will not take yours.

Do business men prefer, other things such as salary and ability being equal, a man to a woman typewriter?—G. W.

I think they do, "other things being equal." I heard three or four men discussing this subject just the other day. They all agreed that a woman's presence improved their English by eliminating profanity from it. "And," one man said, "after getting accustomed to a woman's being in the room I behave and talk in other respects just as I should if men only were present. I put my feet on the table and spit when I want to. It is not because I feel a restraint in any way that I do not like a woman typewriter, but because she does so many things that annoy me. Some of them chew gum. All of them have little bags of chocolate creams, from which they are constantly nibbling. At luncheon time they are apt to light up a little alcohol stove and when I come into the room there is a smell of something cooking. Well, all this is annoying. If it were a man I should ask him to stop it." The other men chimed in and agreed with the speaker. Now, girls, do not strain the consideration often granted to you because of your femininity. If you do, on some slight pretext your employer will dismiss you. The rules for success in any business are the same for men and women, viz.: Do not strain the influence by which you secured your position; do that for which you are paid first, and do it the best you can and do it before attending to your own business.

$100 DOLLARS REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

COMPLIMENT THAT'S APPRECIATED.

The Courier is not given to self-praise. The publishers have preferred to send the paper out on its merits, without any boasting. But the following extract from a letter written by a valued subscriber, a foremost citizen of Lincoln, is particularly gratifying to the publishers, and its publication is not, it is believed, in bad taste:

"I want to say to you frankly that I enjoy your paper in a way in which I have enjoyed no other. It is so frank and brainy that it is refreshing to read it. If our dailies in Lincoln were of the same stamp, willing to be fair and honest, not afraid as is the Journal, nor sensational like the News, or ready to blackmail like the Call, what a difference it would make in their influence in this community. No Lincoln paper has ever pleased me in so many ways as The Courier, and I feel like thanking you for influencing me to subscribe for it."
