

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

DEAR ELEANOR:

I returned to Omaha just in time to accept an invitation to the Ak-Sar-Ben ball, and I donned a yellow silk dress that was much admired in Old Point Comfort, and went out to the old Coliseum barn, metamorphosed into a great ball room, to salaam before May Dundy and Mr. Yost. The queen was really queenly. What is the use of my telling you what she wore? All of the newspapers have had columns of inspiring particulars about what Mrs. So-and-So "had on," and I will not bore you with any more dress making memoranda. Miss Dundy was undoubtedly selected for her face and form and, well her appearance in general, and I think it is a pity all kings are not so conservative as was King Casper. The queen was fair and stately, and there was scarcely more than the usual amount of grumbling among the ladies in waiting. The king is a fine gentleman, tho' I think he looks more like Gen. Gillfory in the "Mighty Dollar" or Mr. Crane's "Senator" than like a king. But you can't always tell. The Prince of Wales looks like a well groomed Chicago pork packer, and King Alexandria of Servia reminds me of an anarchist or a divinity student. Mr. Yost has lovely whiskers on his chin and he moved about in that one-block-an-hour manner that imitation kings always affect.

Mr. Blank, whose invitation I accepted, and whom I must sincerely respect, for I am told it cost each one of the Omaha young men who attended the ball accompanied by a lady from $20 to $25, said he thought I would hardly care to dance, as he noticed there were a number of uncertain people present from South Omaha, Wahoo and Lincoln. [you know Omaha people still like to rub it in on Lincoln]; but I told him I guessed I could stand it as it seemed to me Omaha society people were greatly in the majority on the floor—and I danced. Of course there were several hundred people on the canvas, but the ball was really select and I think the people who managed it must have used a good deal of tact.

A number of the sedate class here in Omaha preferred to occupy seats in the spectator's gallery, and it is true that it was the younger set that was most largely represented. I think the most beautiful sight I ever beheld was Clem Chase in his Ak-Sar-Ben costume in which he appeared in the early part of the evening. He was entirely in white with the exception of shiny top boots, and he was too lovely for anything. I heard one young man from Nebraska City ask an Omaha girl if that was "the man who owned the show," pointing to Clem who was pacing the floor with measured tread. A good many of the girls here had their dances pretty well taken before they arrived at the ball, but you will no doubt be pleased to hear that the Lincoln girls rather more than held their own. Miss Grace Oakley and Miss Burnham, the official representatives from your town, were largely sought after. Miss Oakley is quite well known here, and she is esteemed as a very pretty girl, but Miss Burnham is a comparative stranger—I understand she is just from school. A great many men were anxious to meet her, and I am sure she had a good time. She is strikingly pretty, I think. Mrs. Walter B. Hargreaves, Dr. and Mrs. Righter and Miss Alice Righter made up a happy family party. Other Lincoln people that I noticed were:

Miss Ella Raymond, Will Raymond, Mr. Mallalieu, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Brown Miss Marshall, Mr. W. M. Smith, Mr. Mason, Mr. Beeson, Mrs. Frank W. Smith and Mrs. Marshall.

The ball was a success. Everybody went to see and be seen. Dancing was impossible, but that was a small matter. Your friend,

PENELOPE.
