BILL BOARD NUISANGE.

A recent bappening in St. Louis serves to call attestion to what is rapidly becoming a great public nuisance. Less than a year ago the city of St. Louis was stricken with a tornado, and in addition to the immense loss of life the property damage ran into the millions. Ever since that destructive storm citizens of St. Louis have naturally been nervous and easily frightened by storms. A few days since, the advance agent of a theatrical attraction called "The Tornado" caused to be distributed all over St. Louis posters bearing the black flag of the signal service bureau and announcing that "Another tornado is coming." As a result there was a panic in the schools and many nervous citizens were badly frightened. The police were ordered to tear down the offending posters and those who put them up will be prosecuted.

While the bill board is an effective way of advertising it is a fact that it is becoming a public nuisance in many ways. Pictures that are positively lewd and indecent, are spread out upon the bill boards, and the result is a bad effect upon public morality. So great has become this evil that many cities have passed ordinances regulating the posting of posters and bills, and while ultraliberals may denounce the action as interference with personal liberty the moral elements of the city are in sympathy with the movement. From an artistic standpoint the changes in the theatrical posters has been along the lines of a wancement, but it is also true that from a moral standpoint the change has been for the worse. The moral drift of the poster is still downward and public policy demands that there be a betterment, — Omaha World-Herald works up to date. To those who do not own encyclopedias it will be doubly valuable as their source of information

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hali's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires constitutional treatement. Ha Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the dises se, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that fails to cure.
