

He was born October 10 1866, in Ohio. The family moved to Lincoln soon after and here Mr. Barnes spent most of his life.

He was at one time a student at the state university. He returned to Ohio, where he finished a course in a business school. For a time thereafter he was an engineer in the employ of the Union Pacific and since has worked for that company in the passenger department at Omaha and Salt Lake.

Mr. Barnes had many friends both in Lincoln and in Salt Lake.

The members of the family present were the father, A. G. Barnes, at present in Omaha, the sister, Mrs. Hooker of Lincoln, and two brothers, Rive and Grady, from Salt Lake. The mother, who is at the latter place, was seriously ill and so could not come.

The Lenten season as it slowly draws to a close offers little of interest in a social way. House cleaning, the Easter to let, those believers in the fast, together with those who respect the observance of Lent because it is the popular thing are causing society to feel its effect and time will soon come when all denominations will adopt its best features as part of their rituals. For it is not hard to see what a good thing a little reckoning of one's past, a little self denial and rest after the gay festivities of winter must be let the proposition come from whom it may.

Solomon in all his glory will not compare with some of the toilets that are being prepared for wearing tomorrow morning. Providence and the weather permitting. The brilliant hues to be worn on the hats this spring are "something awful" and will tend to distract the minds of the would-be worshippers from the carefully prepared sermons.

That the man of sensitive nerves be prepared for the shock when his eyes fall for the first time upon the Easter creation we would warn him that the colors used upon the bonnets are of the most dazzling hues. Shading from the rich reds to the pale pinks or from the dark blues to the lighter shades of delph blue. Some have vivid greens with occasional dashes of black to give character to the effect. Upon the whole the flowers piled upon them will rival the decorations on the altar.

The death of Major J. K. Marlay on Thursday morning removes a familiar figure from our midst. Tall, silent Major Marlay has walked up and down the streets of Lincoln since 1871. From that time till 1876 he was pro-rietor of a drug store on Eleventh street between O and N. In 1877 he be-came deputy commissioner of public lands and buildings and served several years. He was born June 9, 1823, in Dayton, O., and lived there until he came to Nebraska. He assisted in rais-ing company A. Sixtieth Ohio volun-tee infantry, in February, 1862, and en-tered service as major of that regiment. In the spring of 1863 he was appointed by President Lincoln provost marshal of the Sixth Ohio congressional district, and continued in that office till it was abolished in 1865. He was married in 1858 to Miss Mary E. McReynolds. The couple have had seven children. Calton C., and Mrs. Harry D. Aron reside in this city, and Phillip in Custer county. The funeral services will be held at the residence Saturday at 3 p. m. The Knights Templar, of which Mr. Marlay was a member issued this call. Al-though Mr. Marlay was a soldier he had none of the aggressive bluster of the recruit. With a mild reminiscent gaze, and stepping always softly, as though fearful of breaking a dream he had be-come of interest to many besides his im-mediate friends and family.

The class of 88 of the state university is quick to congratulate J. Amos Barrett secretary of the state historical society on his marriage to Mrs. Sadie Rogers of Salt Lake City, Utah. The ceremony was performed at the home of Dr. H. J. Winnett by Rev. A. F. Newell of Vine street Congregational church. Only one friend of the groom was present besides Dr. Winnett and wife. An appetizing luncheon followed the cere-mony. Mr and Mrs. Barrett will reside at 1611 Qstr. of. Mrs. Barrett lived at Lodge Pole, Neb., and afterwards taught school at Sidney, Neb., and Salt Lake City Utah. For the past few years she has represented an insurance company at the latter place. The members of the class of 88, who by the way are very fond of Jay suppose that he met his wife on one of his visits to his sister Grace when she taught school in Salt Lake City. Although it is not at all necessary that his classmates should know why Mr. Barrett married a lady in Salt Lake instead of in Lincoln, it is impossible not to speculate on the course of true love which terminated in Salt Lake City. Mr. Barrett's valuable contributions to historical literature have added esteem to the friendliness which all his acquaintances have for him.

She gives a performance that has never been equalled in any stage in the United States "Adgie and her lions will appear at every per-formance. Prices only 10 25c. Box seats 50c. The following notice taken from the Kansas City Journal, Monday, April 12, 1897 regarding Chas. E. Blaney's play "A Baggage Check," which will be seen at the Funke opera house Friday evening April 23rd will be of interest.

"The only opening at the theaters yesterday was Charles A. Blaney's "A Baggage Check" at the Grand. The new comedy, as its name suggests, is a farce of the frothiest sort, whose plot is illusive. Its sole claim to popularity is cast by a lot of clever people who intro-duce good specialties. Among the prin-cipal funmakers is Miss Lizzie Melrose, cast for Violet Wild, a Bowery girl, a part to which she gives such spontaneity as to secure immediate and enduring favor. Robin Steel, a tramp of the "Hoss" Hoey order, is capably played by Thomas Evens, who has superior comedy powers as well as more than ordi-nary skill as a dancer. Butts, the ubiquitous juvenile of all farces, is well played by James T. Kelley, a rather un-usual part for this comedian. One of the best features of the entertainment is the acrobatic dancing of the three Franchetti sisters, who are a pretty, graceful and inoffensive trio. The music is better than the average farce comedy jangle, the negro melodies being especially pleasing.

The Capital dining parlors on north Eleventh street have now opened and are dy far the best place in the city for lunches or regular meals. A trial is especially solicited from down town business men. The Easter dinner will be unexcelled in the state. E. Hurd, proprietor, F. M. Hohl, manager. 123 north Eleventh street.
