The women of Denver are preparing and planning for a building, all their own. This will be a club house where the clubs of the city may meet. Denver has more clubs than any other city in the union, unless it be greater New York, and the women take a great interest in club work. The women in that state have the right of suffrage, and they feel that their work amounts to something, so they are encouraged to go ahead. The work of the clubs in that city, for the improvement of the city has obtained a national fame, and the city is one of the cleanest and best kept in the west. This state of affairs is due, in great part, to the women who have been looking after the health and cleanliness of the city.

At the last meeting of the club a report was submitted to the members in regard to the new house. If this report is adopted the club house will be begun soon, and every effort will be made to have it completed for the next biennial which will take place next June. The plan is to take $3,000 from the treasury of the club to make the first payment on the site. The remainder of the money is to be raised by subscription loans, and bonds of the club in the denomination of $10, $50 and $100 are to be issued, running for ten years.

At the option of the club these bonds may be taken up in one year. The money for the building is to be raised by a loan amounting to the estimated cost of the building with an addition of 10 per cent. The loan is to be secured by a mortgage on the building and site. One thousand dollars is to be paid each year on the loan. A sinking fund will be formed for the paying of the $1,000 and interest. A large number of prominent business men are interested in the project and the selection of the site is now in progress. The next meeting of the club will decide whether a new building will be erected or not, but it is the general opinion that a club house will soon adorn the streets of Denver, and it will be wholly through the enterprise of the women of the city.

At the meeting of the Matinee Musical on Monday afternoon, the members listened to a delightful talk on a "New York Musical Season," from Mrs. Will Owen Jones. The subject was confined mostly to the great pianists heard in New York during last winter and spring, and the well known technical knowledge of Mrs. Jones, gave great value and in-
