

ADDITIONAL CLUBS.

The Lincoln Fortnightly met on Friday, April 1. It was decided to join the national federation and the secretary was instructed to take the necessary steps thereto. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Barbour; vice president, Mrs. Field; secretary, Mrs. C. H. Imhoff. Mrs. Imhoff then read a scholarly paper on the Dutch struggle for independence. The club adjourned to meet on April 15 with Mrs. I. M. Raymond.

We all know in an indefinite way that our influence is far reaching, but it is pleasant to have this knowledge appear in a concrete form.

According to a member of the city library board, the work of the club women has been found most helpful in building up the library. The courses of study undertaken by the various clubs are carefully chosen with reference to the latest and best authorities. Whenever possible a certain number of these books desired are purchased by the library, which is gradually accumulating the chief works on a variety of subjects. It is a case of compensation. The library accommodates the club women, but in return it receives the results of their investigations and experience.

A close watch is kept of the encroachments of woman upon the domain of man. We see only what we are seeking. Now if the vision were as carefully trained to note the advance of man toward the feminine boundaries, many would be found to have slipped in unaware. We have had men cooks in abundance, but the addition of domestic science to the curriculum of a college for men, is a new thing. The General Theological seminary in New York has lately provided a course of lectures on cookery (no doubt with their practical application) for the benefit of those intending to enter the mission field. Already six students have entered for the study, all of whom are destined to serve in foreign countries. China and India are among the points designated.

This seems to be an entering wedge, and we may live to see all men study the rudiments of cookery.

The regular meeting of the W. R. P. C. club was held at the home of Mrs. C. C. Wilson Friday afternoon April 8. In honor of the club Mrs. Wilson had decorated her home profusely in club colors and flowers: the mantle being banked with Easter lilies, palms and smilax entwined. Mrs. Rohrer's culinary achievements was the topic for discussion. The ladies proved themselves thoroughly acquainted with her methods, especially the hostesses, whose delicious refreshments were enjoyed by all, the delicacies of the season being served.

An Easter song and a lullaby was nicely rendered by Mrs. Wilson's two little nieces, also a piano solo by Miss Kempton.

The ladies then indulged in an egg hunt which caused much merriment, the eggs being retained as souvenirs.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Snively, Twenty-eighth and Q street, April 22. Subject, Cyrus Field and the Atlantic cable. Quotations from Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Among the women who will participate in the convention at Denver is Mrs. Fischel of St. Louis, who has a national reputation for her work in teaching children "home economics" and in training other women to teach them. Mrs. Fischel's work in this line in St. Louis, is wholly original, and her training schools were the first established. Her methods are much sought after, and she is kept very busy answering inquiries from all over the country. Her work at the Biennial will be a great object lesson for all who witness the training class. She will instruct a class of children on Wednesday afternoon, June 22. Mrs. Fischel is a woman of great executive ability and has much to do with the intellectual life of St. Louis. Her mind is masculine in its grasp of profound subjects. She is considered by the legal fraternity in St. Louis, an authority on international law. She thinks better "on her feet" than any woman I have ever known, and is a born orator. St. Louis women are proud of her. Mrs. J. C. Learned of St. Louis will occupy a pulpit Sunday morning, June 26. Mrs. Moore will preside at the Saturday evening meeting.

Mrs. L. Evans who has been a leader in the Chicago self-supporting women's clubs, lunch clubs, evening clubs and others, will preside at the Wednesday afternoon meeting devoted to "Phases of economic work in clubs." She will tell the history of these clubs, which are the only ones of the kind in America, and will illustrate the club spirit which makes all equal.

At the educational meeting, the same evening, Miss Anne Lane, auditor of the general federation, will preside. Mrs. Mary E. Munford, former vice-president; Mrs. Harriet Heller of Omaha, and Mrs. Corey of Utah, will be among the speakers.

"Civic clubs and village improvement societies" is the subject for Thursday morning and the chairman will be Mrs. Cornelius Stevenson, president of the Philadelphia Civic club. Mrs. Thayer of Iowa, will preside at a meeting Thursday afternoon on the "Library movement in the United States," and accounts of the travelling libraries sent out by the different state federations will be given, with special reference to the work in the south.

In the club house, at the same hour, will occur the meeting of "The Press." Mrs. Herotin will preside, and two of the speakers will be Mrs. Pauline Swalm of Oscaloosa, Ia., editor of a very influential paper there, and Helen Winslow, editor of the Club Woman. An organization has been formed among the Denver press women for the purpose of extending courtesies to those press women who may attend the convention.

From 4 to 6 Thursday there will be receptions at private houses, to which the delegations will be invited by states. Thursday evening comes "Uncut leaves" being readings from the unpublished works of the federation's most distinguished writers, Agnes Repplier, Mary Hallock Foote and others.

Miss Margaret Evans, president of Carleton College, and also president of the Minnesota federation, will preside at the educational conference Friday morning. "The industrial problem as it affects women and children" will be considered Friday evening. Clare de Grafenried, of the National Bureau of Labor, will speak at this meeting, as also Mrs. A. P. Stevens, one of the most famous statisticians of the country, and Mary Kenney O'Sullivan, president of the Boston Union for Industrial Progress.

A conference of art clubs will be led by Mrs. Herman J. Hall, leader of the Chicago Art Association, and there will be a stereopticon lecture by Ralph Clarkson of Chicago. At the evening meeting on "Art and Utility," Mrs. Candace Wheeler, president of the Associated Artists of New York, will preside.

On Monday there will be at least twelve pulpits occupied by women of the clubs. Among the speakers will be Mrs. C. Stevenson, Mrs. Celia Parker Woolley of Chicago; Mrs. Henry Solomon, president of the National Council of Jewish Women; Mrs. Caroline Bartlett Crane of Kalamazoo; Mrs. Belle Stroutenborough and others.

Mrs. Perkins of Grand Rapids, will preside at a conference on "Club methods," and Miss May Alden Ward will preside at the conference of literary clubs. Plenty of music and special exercises by children will vary the program. Other meetings touching various phases of club life, are yet to be arranged, and Saturday, June 25, is left free in order that a mountain excursion may be enjoyed by the delegates. Mrs. Herotin, the president, has estimated that nearly a thousand delegates will be present and at least as many more visitors from outside the state, while great numbers of women from Denver and all parts of Colorado will attend the meetings.

Mr. Greymair awoke from his doze with a start. "Gracious!" he exclaimed, I have been asleep, my dear. Would you mind repeating what you said last? I think you were at 'billy-shallying, shiftless wretch' when I dropped off.—Cincinnati Enquirer.
