The many friends of Mrs. M. R. McConnell in the city and state will be glad to see that her value as a club member has been so quickly recognized in Washington.

The new plan for nomination of officers absorbed most of the time at the meeting of the Lincoln Woman's club on Monday. Several matters of minor importance were first announced by the president. Committees were appointed for the reception to be held in the club room on Tuesday next from 3 to 5 o'clock when all the members are expected to meet socially. A number of year books are still on hand which may be had by members or friends of the club upon application to the secretary. Mrs. McMurphy will give a lecture upon whole wheat flour under the auspices of the household economic's department, some time next week. The lecture will be free and the date will be announced later.

A request was made for the addition to the club of a musical department.

This was granted on condition that the names be secured of ten persons wishing to undertake this branch of work.

Blank ballots were distributed among the members, who filled in the names of those desired.

The nomination committee will take the two names for each office appearing the greatest number of times, to present to the club for election at its next meeting. The ballot box was impressively sealed and delivered by the president to the secretary with careful injunction to "guard it with her life" until such time as she should deliver it with her own hands to the committee.

The leader of the current events department, Mrs. S. B. Hohmann, presided during the short program.

Miss Snively opened with a pretty piano solo, and was followed by Mrs. F. A. Brown who gave an excellent talk on "Finland and its women." This country is so little known that enhanced interest is lent the subject. Education is compulsory in Finland, and the doors of its universities have been open to women
