

The wedding of Miss Nellie Eddy to Mr. Arba Smith was solemnized at 9:30 on Thursday morning in the Grace M. E. church, the Rev. Guild officiating. The church was adorned with palms and carnations. At the third row of seats there was an arc of carnations and evergreens over each aisle, and these three rows were reserved for the members of the P. E. O., to which society the bride belongs. The church was filled with a large audience of relatives and friends who were given seats by Messrs. John Skidmore, Charles Smith, Ralph Smith and Hugh Edmiston.

At half past nine the maids entered the church singing the bridal chorus from Lohengrin. Mrs. D. A. Butler presided at the organ. The maids were Misses Amber Barnaby, Pearl Barnaby, Bessie Ringer, Mattie Johnson, Ida Johnson, Anna Howland, Pearl Wycoff, Crawford, Claire Danielson, Lou Pebbles, Annie Stuart and Geneva Bahlman. They were all gowned in white. When they reached the altar they stood facing the bride and groom. Next came little Paul Smith as ring bearer and Geneva Roberts and Florence Jones as flower girls. The bride entered leaning on the arm of her father. Her maid of honor was Miss May Smith, and the groom's best man was Mr. Orville Eddy. At the close of the ceremony Mendelssohn's wedding march was played. Mr. and Mrs. Smith left at ten o'clock for the east. Both have lived in Lincoln for some time and have many friends who wish them happiness and success.

Gladys—Then give me the refusal of you till October First.

A well-known fashion paper, in its answers to correspondents, says, "A married woman, when asked her name, should reply, Mrs. John Robinson." This is all very nice, and in specified cases eminently proper. But suppose for an instant that the lady is Mrs. Peter Smith, or Mrs. Wogram Peebles, or some other? Why should she claim to be Mrs. John Robinson just because somebody asks her name? We fear the advice too closely adhered to get somebody in trouble.

"I understand that the United States commission to the Paris exposition for 1900 has asked for 20,000 more square feet of space."
