meyer was chairman of the committee to make arrangements for the dance. He was ably assisted by Mr. Van Valin, who acted in the capacity of master of ceremonies. The committee on arrangements comprised the following: Misses Whiting, Woodward, O'Connell, Stratton and Wiggernhorn; Messrs Anderson, Matson, Moore, Christensen, Williams.

Mrs. J. B. Wright is visiting in Chicago, and in her honor, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. O. Robinson gave a reception on Wednesday night. The society column of the Record contained the following bit concerning the reception in its Thursday issue: "Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Robinson, 4406 Oakenwald avenue, gave a reception and dance last night at the Kenwood club, the guests numbering over 200. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson were assisted in receiving by Mrs. John B. Wright of Lincoln, Neb., who is their guest. The reception was from 8:30 to 9:30 o'clock. Dancing followed and supper was served at midnight." Mrs. Robinson is well known in Lincoln society by reason of the fact that she has visited here several times, and her presence in the city has always been a signal for a great many parties and receptions.

In last Sunday's St. Louis Republic, there is an illustrated account of a youth in a plaid golf suit, who wears glasses, speaks with a repulsive nasal drawl and says "Don't'er know." The features in the illustration are those of the university student named Lincoln who victimized, or tried to, tailors, landladies and everybody he came in contact with. He said he was "b'astly tough" and gave the impression of possessing wealthy but irate parents who had temporarily stopped a munificent allowance. On which account he was forced to become a borrower. After his tale of woe had been worked as much as it would stand he disappeared leaving debts behind him. The St. Louis story-writer's tale is a sketch from real life and Lincoln is the hero though he is called Tweed in the story. You may know him by the glassy eye, the long chin, the muffled catarrhal tones of his voice and above all his awful gait. He lands in St. Louis in his golf suit but without any other indications of being an expert player. He presented a letter of introduction from a friend in Omaha to a man in St. Louis who earns his living by newspaper work. The man introduces Mr. Tweed to "the Old Man" who gives him one look and says he is sorry that he has nothing for him. Then Tweed strikes the man to whom he had the introduction for an introduction to a hotel keeper and a tailor, he goes with him to his meals and finally asks him for five dollars. Then the man shakes off the nightmare in a golf suit and the story ends. The verisimilitude between Lincoln and Tweed is so exact that there is little doubt of their identity. Doubtless Lincoln is pretty tired of that golf suit, and he would do any thing to get another except go to work.

A recent gathering at the Stroller's club of New York, was one of the most enjoyable and unique occasions that the season has yet known. It was remarkable for bringing together a collection of very beautiful women; in fact, there seemed to be no ugly women on the list of guests. The professional women who were present were, if anything, more quietly and demurely gowned than their sisters of the "smart" set, and all the women guests wandered in delightful freedom through the hitherto forbidden precincts of this small, two-story Bohemia. Miss Maxine Elliott, in a gorgeous purple gown, was a study in rich, glowing color; Miss Mannering looked prettier than her photographs; Mrs. Belmont and Mrs. Oelrichs were in evidence, the former, wearing one of the long tan coats that have gained such a vogue of late. Among the men the most conspicuous figures were Mr. Peter Daily and Mr. James Powers, immaculately garbed and wearing the look of abstracted thought that is supposed to mark the born leader of cotillions.

Tailor gowns become the most important costumes of my lady's wardrobe during the Lenten days, when a reading or morning service is the only public function of the day. With the woman who is absolutely correct in dress such details as hats and gloves and veils all change their character and become more demure in outline until the Easter Day. One home function that flourishes with new life during Lent is the luncheon—usually a feminine affair and redolent of Lenten spirit in the purple candle shades, the violet-strewn cloth, and china in delicate tints of the same color. At a woman's luncheon there can never be too many flowers, too many lace-frilled dishes or ribbon-tied sandwiches, so that the Lenten luncheon table frequently looks like a bazaar counter spread with embroidery and fancy china. Fish dishes in their various forms compose the menus of these events, designed to while away the dreary afternoons of those who spend Lent in the city.

The members of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority occupied boxes Thursday night at the concert given by Blatchford Kavanagh and his troupe. The party was in honor of Mrs. Harriet Dement Packard of Chicago, who is a member of the sorority, also a well-known singer, and during her stay in the city was the guest of Miss Dena Loomis, also a member of the sorority. Those occupying boxes were: Misses Dement, Bail and Bonnell of Chicago; Sheldon of Holdrege; Loomis, Getner, Weeks, Vancil, Millar, Macfarland, Randall, Clark, Schwartz, Edgren, Douglas and Wiggernhorn. Mrs. Ansley chaperoned the party. After the concert the friends of Mrs. Packard went on the stage where an informal reception was held, Mr. Kavanagh and Mrs. Packard being the center of attraction for some time. During the afternoon the members of the sorority and many other friends called upon Mrs. Packard at the home of Miss Loomis.

Miss Jessie Leland gave a delightful party last Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Colson of Illinois who is visiting Mrs. C. F. Harpham on R street. The party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harpham. Five tables were set for cards and the game was progressive euchre. Mrs. Gussie Walsh gained the royal prize for the ladies and Horace Whitmore won the prize for the gentlemen. Dainty refreshments were served after the games were over. Thursday evening Miss Leland again entertained for Miss Colson. Four tables were set for progressive euchre. Mr. and Mrs. Ross Curtice obtained the prizes. Refreshments were served at the close. Miss Colson resides in Mattoon, Ill., and will remain in the city a week or so.

One of the pleasant lodge functions of the week was a "Manila Program," given Tuesday night in the Odd Fellows' hall by the members of Columbian lodge No. 90, Daughters of Rebekah. The evening was spent with a program of music and addresses by returned soldiers. Mrs. Dr. Cotter sang a solo, Fred Fasseets and Arthur Shepherd made talks, a quartet gave a selection and E. E. Peek sang two solos. At the close of the program the guests were served with coffee, wafers and sandwiches. Later the company danced to music furnished by Seidel's orchestra. The social was enjoyable throughout.

Miss Blanche Walsh, the talented young tragedienne who appeared at The Oliver this week in "La Tosca" and "Fedora," was the guest of Mrs. Ed Fitzgerald during her stay in the city. Mrs. Fitzgerald is so fortunate as to know Miss Walsh and the meeting between the two friends was most enjoyable. Mrs. Fitzgerald gave a luncheon Wednesday at 12:30 for her guest at Mount Emerald at which only the members of the family were present. The little party was made most enjoyable by the graciousness of Miss Walsh who entertained her hostess and her friends with her charming manners.

One of the numerous things planned for St. Valentine's day is a "Valentine Tea" to be given by the members of the North Side circle of St. Paul's church. It will be given on the evening of St. Valentine's day in the church and promises to be a very pleasant affair. The ladies are endeavoring to furnish something new in the way of entertainment for their husbands at this gathering and the list of toasts is now to be arranged.

Mrs. Langworthy of Seward, president of the State federation of women's clubs, Mrs. Howard Doane of Crete, treasurer of the federation, and Mrs. Sedgwick of York, were in the city Tuesday, and spent the day with Mrs. D. A. Campbell. They were arranging a musical to be given at the next meeting of the federation in October.

The members of the Lincoln club enjoyed a very pleasant dance at the Lincoln Light Infantry hall Thursday evening. Miss Willoughby's orchestra furnished the music. The dance was the ninth in the series for the winter and was very enjoyable. Ices were served during the evening. About forty couples were present.

Mr. W. C. Warfel, late of the firm of Paine & Warfel, has entered Hahnemann Medical College of Chicago, as student of medicine. Mrs. Warfel still remains a pupil of Signor Arturo Mareschalchi of the Chicago Conservatory of Music. Mrs. Warfel has a contralto voice.

Congressman E. J. Burkett is home from Washington, D. C., where he went to get acquainted and make himself familiar with things. He says he had a delightful time and was shown every courtesy by Lincoln men who are there. He saw Mr. F. W. Collins and other men well known here. He says they are all happy as they have good positions and are taking life pleasantly.

The members of Appomattox and Faragut relief corps with the members of Belknap corps of University Place are planning for a reception to the soldier boys who are home from Manila. The time and place has not been selected yet, but it is thought that the reception may be held about February 14th.

The Rose Bud club gave a dance on Wednesday evening at Walsh's hall. This is the second dance of the club, as it is but newly organized. Miss Willoughby's orchestra furnished the music for a long dancing program. About forty-five couples were present and had a good time.

Wednesday night the assembly at Turpin's hall was made a little unusual by allowing outsiders to participate. About twenty couples enjoyed fourteen dances. Ed Walt and Miss Clark furnished the music and every one had a good time.

Mr. Frank M. Rector well known in Lincoln, well assumes the difficult role of Don Saluste in Ruy Blas, who plots revenge on the Queen. He has a most remarkable voice and his acting is done with such dash and vigor that it is wonderful.

Miss Ella M. Crawford impersonates the character of Miss Marranne of Newburg in her own imitable and artistic manner.

Mrs. Grace Cameron of the Cameron Concert company, will be the guest of Mrs. L. J. Herzog while in the city. On Monday evening after the concert, Mr. and Mrs. Herzog will entertain the company at a luncheon at their residence, 18th and N streets.

The members of Kappa Alpha Theta will hold their annual banquet this evening at the home of Miss Emily Weeks. Great preparations have been made to make the event one full of joyousness.

Miss Anna Anderson gave a pretty little party Thursday night at her home on 21st and Holdrege streets. About twenty young people were present and enjoyed the evening with games and refreshments.

Mrs. Ed Wilkinson and Mrs. Carl Carpender have issued invitations for a progressive heart party on February 13, the eve of St. Valentine's day. The invitations are heart shaped, and the decorations will be in keeping with the time.

The Round Table met with Mrs. I. M. Raymond on Monday evening. Expansion was the topic of the evening and it was discussed with the interest inherent in so vital and imminent a subject.

Mr. Henri Grissitt, advance agent for the West Minstrel Show visited the Lincoln newspapers this week. He is a
