Children of the Himalayas.

Travelers in India report that in certain parts of the Himalaya mountains the native women have a singular way of putting their children to sleep in the middle of the day. The child is put near a stream of water, and by means of a tin scoop or a palm leaf the water is deflected so as to run over the back of the child's head. The water pouring over the child's head sends it to sleep, and keeps it so, while the mother proceeds with her work in the field. No one seems to fear that the baby may be drowned, and perhaps many a one does perish in that way.
