Who Wants Inferior Medicine?

It costs so much to import and so much to reduce crude drugs to a state of utility and it costs a certain per cent to do business; so that it is necessary for drug stores to sell not lower than a certain price if the goods are to be first quality. If you want a six per cent pure opium or a three quarter chalk Talcum Powder than you will be satisfied with the drugs offered by some Merchandising Pharmacists.

OUR PRICES are not too low, not too high—just right—the lowest possible for first quality goods.

SOCIETY

Society has not been gay this week; quite the reverse. One large musicale was given, as were also a swell reception and a large afternoon card party. A new card club has been formed which held its first meeting Thursday night. A number of informal affairs have been given for a visitor to Lincoln. One children's party was given and one luncheon, which, though small, was elegant. Next week will probably be a repetition of this, as little is promised.

An invitation to any social entertainment should be replied to as early as possible after it is received, but especially should those to dinners and card parties receive prompt attention. No woman who has given either of these forms of entertainments can forget the suspense which continued perhaps to the day of the party because certain of her guests had not responded in any way to her invitation, and she knew not whether she would have six tables or five and a half, or if the game would be four or six handed euchre, or, if a dinner was to be given, how many guests must be seated at her table. If there is any doubt about being able to accept such an invitation, it is better to send regrets than to thus annoy a hostess.

On Tuesday evening at the Second Presbyterian church occurred the marriage of Miss Alice Louise Bentor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Benton, to Mr. Arthur F. Shepherd of Plattsmouth. Dr. Long officiated using the ring service. The church was beautifully decorated for the wedding. The bride wore an exquisite gown of white silk and in her hair were bride roses. Miss Helen Tuttle acted as bridesmaid and Mr. Leo Copland as best man. The ushers were Messrs. Robinson, Beckman, Schuluff, and Balance of Plattsmouth. Following the ceremony a reception was given at the home of the bride's parents. The house was elaborately decorated with roses, carnations and palms. The presents to the bride were many and handsome. Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Shepherd and their daughter Miss Daisy Shepherd of Pawnee City; Mrs. Wilcox, Miss Sutter and Miss Robertson of Omaha. Mr. and Mrs. Shepherd will reside in Plattsmouth where they will receive their friends after November fifteenth.

A euchre club has just been organized by some of the young married people. Its name "The Good Times Euchre Club" is in antithesis to the "Hard Times Whist Club" which was started and merrily conducted during the panic, like the private theatricals which were enjoyed by the prisoners of the Bastille during the Reign of Terror. The members of the Good Times club are Mesdames Marshall, Wood, Dorgan, Morrison, Rector, Howe, Fitzgerald, Mullen, W. F. Kelley, Mark and Frank Woods; Misses Harrison, Marshall, Putnam, Burr. The first meeting was held on Thursday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Dorgan in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Rollins from Columbus, Mo. The invited guests were Dr. and Mrs. Ludd, Mr. and Mrs. Muir, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Burr; Misses Carson, McClure, Naughton; Messrs. Linnson, Dixon, Joyce, Butler, Shedd, Eams, Smith. The next meeting of the club will be held in two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. George Woods. The young lady members are allowed to invite what ever youths their wilding fancy may choose.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Sawyer gave a musical Saturday evening in honor of their guest Miss Clara Ferrenberg. The spacious home was well filled with appreciative listeners. Miss Ferrenberg gave the principal part of the program, and was assisted by Miss Maud Hammond, pianist, and Mrs. Wurzburg accompanist. Miss Hammond played two well executed piano solos after each of which she received an enthusiastic recall. Miss Ferrenberg is the possessor of a well cultivated light soprano voice which she uses with good effect, her tone production being exceedingly good as well as her interpretations. Her selections called for a variety in style which she proved herself capable of demonstrating. The program: a. "Gypsy Song"—Dvorak; b. "Wanderers Night Song"—Shubert; c. Carmosencella—Max Bruch; Miss Ferrenberg. "Kammenoi-Ostrow"—Rubenstein; Miss Hammond. s. "First Meeting"—Grieg; b. "Stars With Little Golden Feetlet"—Franz; c. Nocturne Op. 9—Chopin arr. Tosti, Miss Ferrenberg. "Polacca Brillante"—Weber, Miss Hammond. Recitative, "Estrano," aria, "Ah fors e lui"—Verdi La Traviata, Miss Ferrenberg. As encore Miss Ferrenberg sang "Bonnie Doon" and "Die Forelle." After the program refreshments were served by Misses Turner, Watkins, Shearer, Harpham, Fields, and Mildred Parks.

Many residents of Lincoln will remember Mr. Cahn who used to spend perhaps the major part of the year in Lincoln. The following from Town Topics relates both to himself and the family of which he is a member: The Duc d'Auxy, who lost a suit the other day to recover monies growing out of his wife's estate, is by birth a Belgian, of old and honorable family, and unquestioned title. He played ducks and drakes with the estate he inherited; married, in 1882, the daughter of G. B. Lamar, once president of the Bank of the Republic; squandered her money and, about six years ago, settled down with his wife in a house on Fifth avenue. Next door lived a Mr. Isaac Cahn, who had made a large fortune in clothing contracts during the War of the Rebellion. Mr. Cahn had two daughters, Emma and Rosa, who became very intimate with the d'Auxys. Imagining that the relations between Rosa and the Duke were too familiar, Mr. Cahn forbade any further intercourse between the families. The girls rebelled, brought against their parents, serious charges and thus got the matter into court, where the father was ordered to pay $40 a week for their support. The case created no end of a sensation in Jewish society at the time, and soon after Mr. and Mrs. Cahn went to live in Colorado Springs and Lincoln, Neb., the girls remaining in New York under the tutelage of the d'Auxys. Later Mr. Louis R. Ehrich, formerly a partner in Ehrich Brothers, of New York, a well-known resident of Colorado Springs, appeared in the case. He came to the city to explain to their coreligionists the position Mr. and Mrs. Cahn had taken with regard to their children. A meeting was called at a private house, and the result of it was that a suit for $75,000 damages was brought against Mr. Ehrich, on account of the statements he made with regard to Rosa Cahn and the Duc d'Auxy. There are many sensational incidents connected with the affair. Madame d'Auxy is suing for a divorce; Lazard Cahn, brother of the girl, was mysteriously stabbed one night as he was entering his father's house on Fifth avenue, and later an at
