Omaha Notes.

Sunday at the Century Club was a rare day—no wind and a clear, cool atmosphere made it so and the men had the links almost to themselves, while the women, wearing trailing skirts and Sunday demeanor, idled on the porches, reading or chatting and waited for hunger and the falling light to bring the players in. Among those who dined out there were: Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Talliaferro, Mrs. Ezra Millard, Mr. Fred Millard, Miss Carrie Millard, Miss Helen Millard, Mrs. Frank Lehmer, Mrs. Gardiner, Miss Dickinson, Doctor Lyman, Mr. and Mrs. Sprague, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Green, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hull, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Wheeler, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Guiou, Mr. Lowe, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cudaby, and Mrs. Cowin. The evening on the porches with the bright moonlight to drive home by was a charming finish for the perfect day.

Wednesday evening found a goodly company at the club, some left over from the afternoon and many stopped in while driving and being a cool evening there were dashes of pink here and there about the hall that promise a brilliant crop of pink coats worn by men and women as soon as the fall is here. Mrs. Guiou blazed in a Jersey with silk sleeves and Miss Dewey a coat with white facings. Some of those who were dining or otherwise enjoying the club hospitality were: Mrs. Yates, Miss Bessie Yates, Mrs. Pritchett, Miss Margaret Pritchett, Mr. and Mrs. Green Mrs. Oakley, Miss Maude Oakley of Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. Lemist, Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Hull, Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell, Miss Hibbard, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis, Miss Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Guiou, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Reed, Mr. Fred Davis, Mr. Foye, Mr. Gannett, Mr. Buckingham, Mr. Hamilton, Miss Woolworth, Mr. Fairfield, Mr. Fred Hamilton, Miss Lydia Moore, Mr. Haskell, Mr. and Mrs. Kinsler, Mr. Drake, Doctor Bridgee, Mrs. W. A. Redick, Mr. Chat Redick, Mr. Strickland, Mrs. Heth, Mr. Young, Miss Ruth Hitchcock, Mr. John Redick, Mr. Charles Kountze, and Mr. and Mrs. Hal McCord.

Mrs. Guiou and Miss Dewey have taken the precedent among the women at the County Club in adopting the pink coat and are most picturesque on the field.

The plan of a six-hole course at the country club is about to materialize. It will be especially for beginners and those whose scores are not down to a prescribed number. This will facilitate matters greatly, as the links have been too crowded at times, and the "earnest workers" object to wasting breath in explosive "fores."

Mrs. W. S. Summers and son have gone east for a six weeks' visit.

Mrs. Oakley and her daughter, Miss Maude Oakley, of Lincoln, who is well remembered here for her charming personality and a beautiful voice, are with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Greene this week and will be guests of Miss Mae Mount next week.

Doctor Hull, surgeon of the B. & M. has gone with Mrs. Hull to Prior Lake.

Died—On Wednesday morning, July the eighteenth, 1900, in his office in the Burr block, Mr. A. W. Scott, of an overdose of chloral hydrate. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental poisoning, though considering the facts of Mr. Scott's depression caused by the loss of his wife, the jury was not certain that it was a case of accidental poisoning. Mr. Scott was a man of much reading. His wife and he were graduates of the same college and singularly sympathetic. Her death paralyzed his ambitions and his energy. From a large, strong, ruddy man, in the year since her death he has become a thin, haggard, hopeless hypochondriac. He said that he had slipped out of his
