SOCIETY

A Lyric Wedding.

Married, on Wednesday, September the fifth, at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. A. M. Davis, Miss Margaret Ella Gaylord of this city, to Mr. Henry Weld Newton of Buffalo, New York. The ceremony was performed at seven o'clock in the evening. Mrs. Newton is one of the very few young women in Lincoln who has won musical distinction abroad. She possesses a tuneful, melodious voice, a gentle, naïf manner, and exceeding simplicity of style. She sings with the unconsciousness of a bird, that is, her art conceals itself, and voice and manner and style are exceptionally pleasing. She was soloist for two years in Doctor Lyman Abbott's church in Brooklyn. She was attended like the brides of ancient Greece by a chorus of men and maidens who sang Cowen's "Rose Maiden" as the wedding procession started, and softly sang "The Lohengrin March" during the ceremony. Two hundred guests congratulated Mr. and Mrs. Newton. The spacious drawing room was in green and white and the ensemble effect in the spacious rooms was very light and airy. Cobwebby lace was draped over doorways and window openings. The wedding party stood under a canopy of lace, smilax and asparagus fronds in one corner of the drawing room. A white rug under the canopy and white roses here and there completed the harmony of the arrangement. Sarah Ladd and Cecilia Ward in pink frocks made way for the bride and retinue by making a lane of white ribbons from the doorway to the canopy. Della Hoover, the little flower girl, in white, scattered flowers just before the bride who walked alone and was followed by Norman Curtice, the page of the ring. The bride's gown was of white crepe de chine, en train. The skirt made with wide vertical tucks. The bodice was draped with Duchesse lace of exquisite pattern and rarity. Her veil was of tulle fastened to her hair by a blazing jewel. The groom met her at the canopy, supported by the Reverend Henry T. Davis, presiding elder of the Lincoln district. After the ceremony Miss Hoover played the Mendelssohn march with spirit and that fervor and unction which distinguish Miss Hoover's numbers. The octette which contributed the undercurrent of music to the service and its stirring voluntary was composed of Mrs. V. O. Strickler of Omaha, Miss Maude Oakley, Mrs. A. S. Raymond, Mrs. E. Lewis Baker, and Messrs. Thatcher, Myer, Martin and Kettering. After the ceremony and the beginning of congratulations Mrs. Newton exchanged her big bride's bouquet for a point lace fan with pearl sticks which the groom's mother had carried at her wedding.

Punch, bride's cake and fruit cake were served in the dining room, metamorphosed into a bower of green and yellow with ferns and golden-rod, by Miss Lunette Keith of Chicago. Ice cream and wedding cake were passed to the guests by Mrs. Nellie M. Richardson, Miss Florence Richardson, Miss Kyle, Mrs. May Shockey, Mrs. Wallace Crandall, Mrs. Phil Sommerlad, Miss Nellie Gaylord and Miss Jessie Lansing. After some of the guests were gone the bride sat down at the piano and sang them songs full of happiness with a soupçon of tears for the leave-taking.

The songs were, Du bist Wie eine Blume and Marquis Bergais and a love song by Riddle.

The out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Keith of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. V. O. Strickler of Omaha, and Mr. John Stafford of St. Louis. Mr. and Mrs. Newton went immediately to Buffalo, where they will be at home after November first at 331 Bryant street.

The Courier reporter who visited the Davis homestead, on the morning of September six found the maid sweeping into one huge heap just one bushel of rice.

Last Friday evening the farewell reception tendered Mrs. Frances Ford by the Omaha Woman's club was a large and brilliant affair. The club rooms were lavishly decorated with palms and flowers. The officers of the club, Mrs. George Tilden, president; Mrs. Mac-Murphy and Mrs. Dumont, vice presidents; Mrs. Anna Herring, secretary; and Miss Ethelwynne Kennedy, together with Mesdames Ford, Harford, Towne and Draper Smith, received the many guests. In the dining room where ices were served throughout the evening Mrs. Horace Burt and Miss Millard presided and were assisted by Mesdames Longfeldt, Wyman, Barlow, Bryson, Ure, Jeffries, Johannes, Misses Stone, Livesey, Scott, Bennett, Dumont, Alexander, Baird and Harford. Mrs. Ford's departure from the city is a source of regret to her many friends, for she has been largely instrumental in building up the Woman's club, and Miss Ethelwynne Kennedy, recording secretary together with Mesdames Ford, Harford, Towne and Draper Smith, received the club. Mrs. Frances Baetens has taken Mrs. Ford's place as leader of the musical department.

The City Improvement Association met on Thursday morning in the library of the Union Commercial club. The ladies completed arrangements for the dance on the green to be given in the City Park on Monday evening. Unless it rains the ladies will serve ices and a company of nine colored men has been engaged to sing. The harvest moon is supposed to be shining and there is every reason to believe that the crowd will be as large and as expansively pleased as on that occasion a few weeks ago, when the ladies of the City Improvement society, with the assistance of Mr. Bryan and Mayor Winnett, opened the park for the season of 1900. A few dancing men have been asked to take charge of the dancing. The dances are to be old fashioned, country dances, and the songs are of the Old Black Joe and Suanee Ribler character. Every one is invited, and about the dancing, there is to be no hanging back. The same spirit should animate the guests as that which makes charity balls so great a success. It is a good thing for the people of a town to get out of cliques and disavow them occasionally for the sake of town feeling.

Mr. C. H. Gere, Miss Gere, and Misses Ellen and Frances Gere, Mrs. Seacrest, Mrs. Whedon, Miss Margaret Whedon, Messrs. Burt and Charles Whedon, Mrs. Edmiston, Doctor Righter, Mr. Fred Righter, Mr. and Mrs. Emory Hardy, Mrs. N. K. Griggs, Miss Griggs and Mr. Hugh Edmiston, re-
