FAMOUS' AUTUMN
MILLINERY DISPLAY.

We have secured the services of Mme. Detmaurice, who was for years, European and resident buyer and manager of a celebrated millinery house of New York City, for our work room and store. Mme. Detmaurice has brought her experience to bear in the selection of the most beautiful of goods, with the result that we have the pleasure of inviting our patrons to see the loveliest of millinery creations it was ever our privilege to show, calling especial attention to our own importation of Pattern Hats, direct from Paris. Every lady in Lincoln should make it a point of seeing them, and our magnificent line of millinery and trimmed hats from our own work rooms.

A Superb Display of the Celebrated Knox New York, Ladies' Felt Hats and ready-to-wear Hats.

SOCIETY

The flower parade on Thursday afternoon was eagerly expected and made a brilliant progress through the streets under summer skies and through cheering avenues of people. It did not create the impression of last year, but it was the second year and lacked the savor of surprise. Many turnouts were of original beauty of a distinct style, daringly executed. The procession was preceded by a guard of bicycles, and bicyclists lavishly decorated. Their rustling progress through the avenues of people was a unique and graceful voluntary to the equipages which followed. It was a warm, bright day and the spectators applauded vigorously, pleased with the gracious ladies, carried along amid the flowers of the field and garden. The large number of heralds outriders and grooms imparted a dignity and processional character to the progress of this year lacking in last year's parade. The queen of the flowers was Alice Brooke, born on the shoulders of twenty straight young fellows from the university military department. The standard and the throne were of white roses and the tiny little queen bowed with childhood's grace and graciousness to the throngs of cheering people. She was unfortunately placed at the end instead of in the middle of the procession and was followed by a rabble of carts and boys.

Many societies and social orders were represented and these were borne on large floats occupied by ladies in the typical costumes of their order. The D. of H. was represented by an elaborate arrangement of pink and white roses. Dewey Lodge No. 2, Royal Achates was in a chariot of dark purple and gold chrysanthemums. The Rathbone sisters and Magnolia camp No. 44, were in a large float covered with iris and calla lilies. Kappa Kappa Gamma fraternity was the only college society in the procession. The young women covered the top of a four-in-hand coach which was decorated in old rose colored flowers and asparagus ferns. The Q. A. T. girls were very effective in yellow—they were in black and surrounded by yellow flowers, and drove black horses. The boat called The Fitzgerald, built around a tandem bicycle, in white and garlanded with roses was extremely artistic. The liberty bell hung between two bicycles in a graceful canopy was very charming and original. The arrangement was twelve feet high and covered with several thousand shaded pink roses. It was ridden by Messrs. Hawley and Smith.

Colonel E. R. Sizer was marshal and the members of his staff were: Messrs. John Franklin, adjutant; Fred E. Hurd, chief of staff; Burt Richards, Sam M. Melick, Doctor C. R. Tefft and J. H. Graves.

First division, John T. Dorgan, commander; Will McClay, adjutant.

Second division, Samuel Whiting, commander; C. S. Jones, adjutant.

Third division, R. H. Oakley, commander; W. H. Clark, adjutant. They rode spirited horses: Marshall Sizer wore a brilliant uniform of white with pink boutonieres. But first of all came Mayor Winnett and Chief of Police Hoagland dignified and handsome.

The first division of the parade was devoted to automobiles and bicycles. Two automobiles were in line. The first was occupied by Joseph Wittman and Miss Bee Billingsley. The decorations were purple and white with small butterflies.

Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Packwood followed in an automobile with simple but very effective decorations. Yellow streamers were used in contrast to the black of the body of the vehicle.

Miss Ada Faurot appeared as a fairy with costume of white trimmed with silver spangled wings and a band of gold in her hair. Her wheel was decorated in shaded purple chrysanthemums.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Heinrichs had a very attractive bicycle float consisting of two wheels attached and bearing arches from which was suspended a floral liberty bell in yellow, purple and white.

Miss Jeannette Davis was in a novel bicycle float decorated with burnt orange flowers.

Among the wheels ridden by boys was one by Donald Plumb in white hollyhocks, one by Robert Herpolsheimer, Ed Sadler, Ivan Lansing and many others.

In the first division of the parade was a small black shetland pony ridden a deux by Henry Plumb and Dorothy Odell.

The Sutton German band, the Beatrice Second regiment and Hagenow's band contributed to the excitement.

Among those in the bicycle division were: Erich Wittman, Ada Faurot, Donald Plumb, Jeannette Davis, Mamie Quick, Mabel Felton, Bessie De Noon, Ivan Lansing, Ed Sadler, Nellie Foley, Paul Schlegel, Clarence Clark, Dorothy Eastwood, Rowland Hesse, Jimmie Mann, Willie Splichat, Alice Bell, James Turner, Bertha Kennedy, Joseph Turner, Bernice Beach, Amelia, Schoenberg, Eva McGillick, Gertrude Bonnell, Alva Halley, Clem Smith and Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Heinrichs.

Mrs. John B. Wright, Mrs. C. E. Yates, Mrs. W. C. Wilson and Mrs. I. F. Searles drove in a two seated cabriolet covered with American beauty-colored poppies with black centres. Stars of black poppies revolved in the wheels. The two black horses wore heavy collars of red poppies. The ladies were in black relieved by red boas and red poppies on their black hats. They carried red parasols ornamented with black stars.

Mrs. C. H. Rudge drove a Stanhope of purple and white pond lilies with a scroll design on the wheels. She was in white and carried a parasol of white lilies. The little page, Thomas Usher, wore a white satin suit with gilt braid trimmings. The dark bay horse had a white harness and was led by a liveried footman.

The P. E. O. society in a two seated carriage in yellow and white occupied by Mrs. C. S. Jones, Mrs. A. Axtell, Miss Fay Ewing and Miss Anna Howland. Big yellow stars were on the wheels. The ladies wore white dresses and black hats.

Mrs. A. G. Davis, Mrs. A. E. Kennard, Mrs. W. L. Crandall and Mrs. Irene Thompson were in a magpie carriage of black and white chrysanthemums, with a black and white horse harnessed in tandem. Two of the ladies were in black with big black picture hats and two in white with white hats. The horses had tall plumes on their
