HUMORS OF ADTER VISING.

A COMPARISON OF ENGLISH AND AMERICAN STYLES.

It is in their intimate tone, their confidential attitude, that the English advertisements differ most widely from our own, says Agnes Repplier in the December "New Lippencott." The brief announcements, so familiar to us, of "well-furnished rooms," "pleasant apartments at the sea side," "board for two single gentlemen in a private family," have a cold, almost repellent aspect, when compared to the genial hospitality with which strangers are invited to enter "the fair, free homes of England." Miss Sophia Deale, of Devonshire, for example, offers to receive a few "Sketching Boarders, or other Students requiring peace and quiet. View of Pines and Harbour from windows." One sees the "sketching boarders"—every Englishwoman sketches as a matter of course—washing in the sky-line on their little pads, and grateful occasionally for the shelter of Mrs. Deale's windows in a land of perpetual showers. Still more personal is the following seductive advertisement which appeared once only in a well-known magazine:

"Home for Lady in charming old detached Cottage near River Thames. Convenient to Station. Seventeen miles from London. Would suit literary Lady requiring quiet yet cheerful home. For companionship and tuition to young Wife of neglected education, would arrange easy terms."

There is the material for a novel in these suggestive lines. The lonely, ignorant young wife in her "detached" cottage; the husband, older, of course, with just enough of learning to feel his sense of superiority; the stranger introduced to play complacently the part of guide, philosopher, and friend. What complications might not arise from such a situation; though in point of comfort and luxury it falls far short of a companion advertisement in the same paper.

"A gentleman residing alone in his distinctly superior Country House (one hour from London) desires a permanent guest of congenial and refined tastes (Lady or Gentleman), who would have the run of his delightful secluded gardens, and of the entire premises equally with himself, and who would appreciate the retirement of a quiet home. Write fully, stating age, habits and profession."

Better Than Dead Indians.

If President Diaz wanted to be crowned King of Mexico it is unlikely that there would be serious opposition to the furtherance of such an ambition. Already he is king de facto. "The Maker of Modern Mexico," as he is called, is commonly supposed to be nearly a full-blooded Indian, but the records show that he is in reality only fifteen thirty-seconds, or a trifle less than half Indian. President Hidalgo, known as the "George Washington of Mexico," was a full-blooded Indian, and President Juarez, the "Abraham Lincoln of Mexico," had in him only a slight strain of white blood. Old Tecumseh, a full-blooded Shawnee, was a brigadier general in the British army. Stand Watie, the Cherokee, held a similar rank in the confederate army, and Ely S. Parker, a Seneca of nearly pure blood, was General Grant's secretary of war, also adjutant general, brigadier general, and commissioner of Indian affairs.—New York Press.

Mrs. Younghusband—You shouldn't scold just because the coffee is a little weak.

Younghusband—Why, woman, if I took this coffee pot to court I could obtain a divorce on these grounds.—Town Topics.
