business meeting, Mrs. Everett, regent of the Lincoln chapter, talked entertainingly for a few minutes and Mrs. Harpham of Lincoln, a delegate to the national convention, presented an admirable report of that convention. Mrs. S. D. Barkalow read an excellent paper on Hawthorne. Mrs. W. E. Hitchcock sang, Miss Lillian Hall played a mandolin solo. About forty members of the D. A. R. were present and a suggestion was made as to the advisability of presenting the new battleship "Nebraska" with a flag. A committee will be appointed by the regent, Mrs. Albee, to discuss the matter and offer it to the consideration of the Sons and Daughters of Nebraska.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cudaby are in California at the place owned in Pasadena by Mr. Michael Cudaby.

Master in Chancery George H. Thumel gave a dinner at the Omaha club Tuesday in honor of Judge Sanborn, the other guests being General Cowin, Judge Regan, Judge Munger and Judge McHugh.

Mr. Richard Baum has returned to St. Paul's school, Concord, N. H., after a pleasant visit with his parents in Omaha.

What Happens to the Shirt-Waists.

The amount of faith which is exercised by the up-to-date young woman in the matter of shirt waists, is indeed remarkable. She will carefully guard her veil, her gloves, her toothbrush and her necktie from the hands of her dearest friends, certain that immediate destruction will result from the most reverent touch. But when once she has consigned her precious shirt waist to the laundry, she gives it no further thought, certain that it will appear at the proper time in its original freshness and beauty. Through the courtesy shown us at the Clarkson Laundry, whose work is by far the best in the city, we are enabled to give our readers an idea of what happens to the shirt waists during the time they are out of their possession.

When the bundles are opened at the laundry the owner's name and the number of waists are recorded on a printed slip. Next they are given a distinguishing mark, which is either placed on the inside of the collar-band or on a small tag fastened to the bottom of the waists. When the waists reach the wash room they are carefully sorted, and those which would fade if washed by the ordinary process are washed by themselves in the softest of soft water, condensed steam, and with a special colored goods soap; the others are put into immense washing machines consisting of two cylinders, one of which is stationary and partly filled with soap and water; the other, made of slats between which the water can pass and containing the waists, revolves several times in the water, then reverses its motion and continues this process until the waists are clean. Then the water is removed and the rinsing and bluing water put into the machine. Next, the waists are put into a centrifugal drying apparatus which is perforated in such a manner that its rapid revolutions force the water through the sides. Next they are starched and put in the drying room; when thoroughly dry, the waists are rolled up in damp towels for half an hour or more, after which the ironing process is commenced. The collars and cuffs are ironed with a roller machine which is run by steam. The sleeves and bodies of the waists are ironed by hand. The waists are then folded and sorted into bundles, according to the number and marks which are recorded upon the slips when they first came into the office.

We were especially struck with the careful handling of the delicate, flimsy waists of this year's design by the operators—and the perfect clearness and whiteness of the white goods.

Died, on Monday, April the twentieth, at the Presidio hospital in San Francisco, Lieutenant Frank M. Polk of this city, son of Mrs. Eliza Polk, 1607 L street. Mr. Polk was on his way back to his mother, sister and friends in Lincoln. On the ocean passage he took cold, and died of pneumonia soon after landing. Mr. Polk volunteered as a private two years ago when the army was reorganized and more soldiers were needed in the Philippines. His soldierly qualities distinguished him from the first. This letter from the colonel of his regiment written unsolicited when he learned Lieutenant Polk's wish to enter the regular army testifies better than any outsider can, to the Lieutenant's faithfulness, ability and soldierly qualities:

"Second Lieutenant, 39th Infantry, U. S. A., has been under my command and observation for the past fifteen months, in camp, in garrison, in campaign and scout, on land and on sea, as private, non-commissioned officer and commissioned officer. He is a gentleman in bearing and breeding. As an enlisted man, his eagerness to serve well, first attracted my attention, and later his zeal, ability and devotion to duty, earned him his commission in his regiment or my regiment. As an officer he has been at all times full of honor and duty and discipline. He has had the best of all teachers, experience in camp and in field, in handling men. And in the duties of supply and movement in the quartermaster's and commissary departments, I heartily recommend him for appointment in the United States army."

(Signed) R. L. Bullard,
Colonel 39th Infantry, U. S. V.
Mrs. Polk received from Judge Chas. E. Magoon at headquarters, this telegram of condolence:
Mrs. Eliza A. Polk, Lincoln, Nebr.

"Allow me to offer my sincere sympathy for you in your affliction and to join you in mourning the death of your son. His record in the army was one of which you may well be proud. And it may lessen your grief to know that it had earned for him a commission in the
