LIFE'S MAZY WHIRL

At the First Baptist church Wednesday evening at eight o'clock, the marriage of Miss May Cynthia Whiting and Mr. Theodore Westermann was celebrated. Reverend H. O. Rowlands, pastor of the church, read the service. He was assisted by Chancellor E. Benjamin Andrews of the state university. The full Episcopal service with two rings was used. Doctor H. M. Mayhew played a succession of beautiful airs on the organ while the audience was assembling, and at eight o'clock the wedding music from Lohengrin announced the coming of the bride. Miss Adelloyd Whiting as maid of honor, advanced first down the aisle and was followed by the bride on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man. The gown worn by the maid of honor was a dainty creation made of tucked white organdie, mechin lace and insertion, the bouquet was of American beauties. The bride's gown was of embroidered chiffon over liberty satin. The skirt was en train with tiny ruffles at the foot headed with medallions of very handsome lace. Some of the same lace was artistically placed on the corsage which was also adorned with seed pearls and finished with a wide sash. Sprays of orange blossoms worn by Mrs. Whiting on her wedding day just thirty years before adorned the bride's corsage and caught the veil to her dark hair. She carried no flowers, but a prayer book, instead. The ushers were Messieurs Max Westermann, Fritz Westermann, Frank Elmer Bishop, Horace Sherman, George Clifton Shedd, George Knapp Bartlett, William Paul Fitzgerald, Edgar Clark. A forest of stately palms made a dignified decoration for the church, and white ribboned pews were reserved for relatives intimate friends, and the members of Kappa Kappa Gamma. Apropos—one of the prettiest scenes at the wedding was the entrance of the Kappas as they trooped down the aisle in their party gowns and opera cloaks. Following the ceremony at the church was a reception given by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anson Virgil Whiting at their home for the bridal party, relatives, guests from Fairbury, Kappas and a few young people. Promptly at half past seven the bride's sister, Miss Emily Trigg, began the rendering of Lohengrin's "Wedding March," and in accord with this the bridal party wended its way from the waiting room through the sitting room and into the drawing room, where beneath two large arched palms, with a back ground of palms and ferns, they were married. The ceremony was witnessed only by relatives and intimate friends. The party was led by six small children, all in white, who, with white ribbons, formed an aisle through which the bride and groom with their attendants came. The table was decorated with a large Battenburg lunch cloth. In the center was a large oval mirror on which rested a bowl of pink roses and around which were garlands of green. Other rooms were very prettily done in green and white, palms and ferns being used in profusion. The doorways were arched with autumn leaves. The porch was enclosed in canvas and illuminated with Japanese lanterns.

Both the bride and groom have resided in Lincoln, the greater part of their lives. The bride is well and most favorably known in musical and social circles. The groom has been connected with the First National bank of this city for the past nine years, and is very popular among his associates.

best wishes of hosts of friends. They will spend their honeymoon in New York and other easter cities.
