

only daughter of the late Mr. N. P. Curtice and Mrs. Curtice, and is a sister of Mr. Ross P. Curtice. She has spent most of her life in Lincoln, and the best wishes of her many Lincoln friends will be her's as she begins her new life. The groom is a young attorney of San Francisco, who has every promise of a prosperous future. Mr. and Mrs. Oliver will be at home at the Northoff in San Francisco after May the first.

A delightful informal party was given Tuesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Eubank at their home on Euclid avenue. Various guests contributed to the pleasure of the evening by their specialties. Mrs. R. A. Holyoke sang; Mrs. Herbert Marsland read, to a piano accompaniment by Mrs. Lee; Mrs. W. C. Phillips recited German poetry which, judging from the sighs of the learned men present, must have been very sentimental; Mrs. Ross Curtice gave a violin selection, Mr. D. M. Butler electrified the audience with a very profound speech, and Mrs. Butler sang. Mr. Clinton R. Lee exhibited his skill at legerdemain. Bouquets of greenery, consisting of lettuce, parsley and celery, were presented to the performers. A delicious luncheon was served.

Mrs. Clinton R. Lee and Mrs. Herbert Marsland were at home to all their friends on Thursday afternoon from half after two until half after five o'clock. Despite the moisture which would descend regardless of the wishes of the hostesses, a large number of ladies called during the receiving hours. The reception was delightful because of its informality. The ladies gathered in groups for a little chatter, sat around the music room and drank tea while Miss Claire Canom played charmingly on the piano for them, and said last words of regret to Mrs. Marsland because of her coming departure from the city. Miss Mildred Morning received the cards at the door. Mrs. Thomas Marsland, gracious and charming as usual, sat at a little tea table and poured the fragrant beverage which was passed to the callers by Mrs. Jessie Stiles, Miss Catharine Lee and Miss Claire Canom.

Mrs. C. S. Jones and Mrs. Haydn Myer were hostesses to all members of P. E. O. society in the city, in honor of the tenth anniversary of the organization of Chapter K, at the home of Mrs. Jones this afternoon. After a business session the hours were devoted to fancy work, conversation and light refreshments.
